

This week in Purple Class

5th January 2018

Welcome back! It was lovely to hear all the stories about all the exciting things the children got up to this holiday. The children produced some lovely writing sharing their experiences.

We have begun our new topic called 'Digging around'. This week the children have become palaeontologists. The children watched a BBC history clip about Mary Anning. The Reception children have been doing their own fossil dig and made their own fossils. The Year 1 children wrote their own diary entries pretending to be Mary Anning. We have been using the internet to look up facts about dinosaurs and have written our own fact files for herbivores and carnivores.

In Maths the children have been learning about halves, the Year 1 have extended this to included quarters.
